TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

Re: Dr Angambakkam Rajasekaran PradccpKurnar

I am writing this letter in support of Dr Angambakkam Rajasekaran PradeepKumar from the Department of Conservative Dentistry and Endodontics in the Thai Moogambigai Dental College and Hospital which is part of the Dr M.G.R. Educational and Research Institute in Chennai, Tamil Nadu, India.

I first met Dr Pradeep Kumar when I visited Chennai in August 2016 in order to present some keynote Lectures at an Endodontic conference. During my visit, we had several discussions regarding important areas of research in our specialty of Endodontics and we agreed to pursue our interests through collaborative research projects.

Since August 2016, we have had many conversations and correspondence via email to develop, conduct and then publish our collaborative research work. This has resulted in two publications in international refereed scientific endodontic journals. These two publications are:

- Poornima L, Ravishankar P, Abbott PV, Subbiya A, Pradeep Kumar AR.
   Impact of root canal treatment on high sensitivity C-reactive protein levels in systemically healthy adults with apical periodontitis A preliminary prospective longitudinal interventional study.
   International Endodontic Journal 2021; 54: 501-508.
- 2 Sandhya S, Pradeep Kumar AR, Abbott PV, Periasamy R, Velayutham G, Krishnamoorthy S, Mahalakshmi K.
  Coronal bacterial penetration after 7 days in Class II endodontic access cavities restored with two temporary restorations: A randomized clinical trial. Australian Endodontic Journal 2020; 46: 358-364.

We continue our collaboration with several current research projects that are in the process of being conducted. We are awaiting the results so they can be analysed and then we will submit manuscripts to appropriate international refereed journals for their consideration for publication.

I have greatly appreciated the opportunity to collaborate with Dr Pradeep Kumar and 1 10 forward to continuing our collaboration for many years. The research being done by him and his research team is of the highest quality and this is shown by the acceptance of the above papers, plus many others that he has authored, in the international endodontic literature.

I hope the above comments are helpful and please do not hesitate to contact me if you require any further information or assistance.

To whom it may concern

This letter is to confirm the ongoing collaboration between Professor Pradeep Kumar AR at the Department of Conservative Dentistry and Endodontics, Thai Moogambigai Dental College, Chennai and my group at the Faculty of Dentistry, University of Toronto.

Background: The current understanding is that different iatrogenic and non-iatrogenic factors would influence the predilection of restored endodontically treated teeth to fracture. The collaboration between our groups was initiated in 2009. The primary objective of this collaboration is to study the effect of different clinical factors, particularly iatrogenic factors on vertical root fractures in restored root-filled teeth. Currently we have generated a database of clinical samples from which different analysis is being carried out. Seven peer-reviewed international journal articles have been published from this collaboration, and two manuscripts are under review.

Current status and lab visits: To further strengthen our collaborations, I have visited the Department of Conservative Dentistry and Endodontics at Thai Moogambigai Dental College on August 4, 2023. Professor Pradeep Kumar visited the Faculty of Dentistry, University of Toronto and participated in research discussions from September 25-28, 2023. Collaborative experiments are currently ongoing on projects related to the effect of diabetes mellitus on the mechanical characteristics of human dentin.

Please let me know if you need any further clarification on this matter.

Abstract

Artificial intelligence (AI) has demonstrated significant promise for the present and future diagnosis of diseases. At the moment, AI-powered diagnostic technologies can help physicians decipher medical pictures like X-rays, magnetic resonance imaging, and computed tomography scans, resulting in quicker and more precise diagnoses. In order to make a prospective diagnosis, AI algorithms may also examine patient information, symptoms, and medical background. The application of AI in disease diagnosis is anticipated to grow as the field develops. In the future, AI may be used to find patterns in enormous volumes of medical data, aiding in disease prediction and prevention before symptoms appear. Additionally, by combining genetic data, lifestyle data, and environmental variables. AI may help in the diagnosis of complicated diseases. It is crucial to remember that while AI can be a powerful tool, it cannot take the place of qualified medical personnel. Instead, AI ought to support and improve diagnostic procedures, enhancing patient care and healthcare results. Future research and the use of AI for disease diagnosis must take ethical issues, data protection, and ongoing model validation into account.

Introduction And Background

An international focus on enhancing the effectiveness of healthcare services using information technology has resulted from an aging patient population and a scarcity of medical personnel. Several health-related sectors heavily rely on artificial intelligence (Al) techniques such as machine learning (ML) and deep learning (DL). These sectors encompass the development of new healthcare systems, the management of patient information and records, and the treatment of various disorders [1,2]. All is an area of algorithm based software that enables robots to use information to solve problems. It may replicate human thought processes and intellectual activities. Al is frequently employed in the medical industry and can help with the creation of new treatments in the information age. Al may identify precise medicines for complicated diseases, improve the course of care for patients with chronic diseases, and lower medical mistakes [3]. Al now comes in two main categories. Expert systems are the first category. An expert system is a computer program that can make better decisions than human decision-makers while generating forecasts under clo monitoring. It is made up of an inference engine and a knowledge base, two interconnected subsystems. The knowledge base encompasses the collection of accumulated experiences, while the inference engine, which serves as a reasoning system, is capable of accessing the current state of the knowledge base and incorporating further information into it. Expert systems can speed up prototyping, facilitate maintena and produce more important information for the system | III. Expert systems have several limitations, nevertheless, in terms of performance and knowledge accumulation. Long used in medical practice, computer-assisted methods have recently produced very modest advancements. ML is the second kind. This is the foundation of AI and a key strategy for giving computers intelligence. For training, ML needs a hug amount of data. Their performance during the procedure is systematically improved by this. Parameter screening is one of the key objectives of ML. The potential enhancement of AI efficiency by parameter reduction must be considered with the potential trade-off of reduced accuracy. Excessive parameters might introduce errors in inputs and computations, compromising the overall accuracy of the Al system. How one of the main goals of Al is to surpass humans by learning on the job in difficult sectors without any prior training.
