Report on the Workshop on Personal Branding

The Literary Seminary, a Professional Society of Dr. M.G.R. Educational and Research Institute conducted an Alumni Supported Extension Program cum Workshop on Personal Branding on 22nd February, 2020. The program was conducted in the Conference Hall of the Madhavoyal campus between 09.15 am to 3:00 pm.

Mr. Kiruba Shankar, CEO of Business Blogging was the resource person for the Workshop. The inauguration began with Tamil: Thal Vazhutu. The dignitaries present on the day were Dr. G. Gopalakrishnan (Provost of Dr. M.G.R. ERI), Dr. V. Cyril Raj (Joint Registrar, Academics and Administration, Dr. M.G.R. ERI), Dr. S. Padmasani Kannan (Director, The Literary Seminary), Dr. R. Pushkala (Dean-English and incharge of The Literary Seminary) and Mr. Pritu Mahata (Senior Alumnus, The Literary Seminary). The participants included students and faculty members from several different faculties of Dr. M.G.R. ERI. Over 10 Alumni of The Literary Seminary were also present.

Dr. Gopalakrishnan delivered the inaugural address, in which he stressed on the importance of Personal Branding, alluding to the vast experience of Mr. Kiruba Shankar on the topic. He welcomed the Alumni of The Literary Seminary. Dr. Cyril Raj gave the special address, in which he remarked on how the Alumni members had built up the club. Dr. Padmasani Kannan spoke next, and thanked the Alumni for their support.

towards the organization of the program.

Mr. Kiruba Shankar is widely known for his 'Unconference' style of training, which emphasizes an informal atmosphere which accelerates the exchange of ideas and learning. He began by outlining the true meaning of Personal Branding. Throughout the Workshop, Mr. Shankar offered several outstanding examples of individuals, corporates and organizations that had built their brand in innovative, off-the-beaten-path methodologies.

He explained why branding is important by asking the participants if they would prefer to visit a local chai shop or Starbucks with their loved ones. He said that all the participants preferred Starbucks not because of their product, but because of the exclusivity of the brand name. The implication was that an individual's success is not just based on their skills, but on their uniqueness, attitude and magnanimity.

One important attribute stressed by Mr. Shankar was to "Have one's elevator pitch." He said that a good elevator pitch is no longer than 7 seconds, and should tell the listener everything they need to know about you and your product. He related the story of how Tony Fernandes of Air Asia fame had convinced business magnate Richard Branson to invest in Air Asia within 15 seconds in an elevator. He gave the participants a strategy set out by Dr. Monroe to craft an excellent elevator pitch, and told the audience to give their pitches.

Mr. Kiruba Shankar next spoke about the critical importance of an online presence (digital footprint) in today's world. He asked the audience to Google themselves, and saw that the Rs. 600 that he had spent to set up his website, Kiruba.com, 20 years ago was his second greatest investment ever. He suggested many strategies to optimize online presence, including setting up social and business media channels of communication, professional photography and a custom email address.

After this, he relayed to the participants the story of how Airbnb had been dreamt up by two students who had gone on a year-long sabbatical. While couch-surfing, they had realized that the huge market of temporary homestays was wide open. They set up their business by attracting investors, mainly by telling them their own story. This was the next big lesson - "To tell one's own story."

Mr. Shankar said that a Personal Brand is the core identity of a person, which sets them apart from the crowd. He recommended the "Illego" method of finding their personal brand, as well as using Venn diagrams. He recounted his experience of meeting Mr. Hassan Al Kontar in a Malaysian airport. Mr. Hassan is a Syrian refugee who had been trapped in the airport for over 200 days, and had used social media to tell his story and find supporters for his cause. Mr. Hassan had asked Mr. Shankar not for money or food, but to simply open a window so he could breathe fresh air. His brand brought him media presence and led to his freedom. Thus, the power of brand-building over social media was illustrated beautifully by the resource person.

He asked the participants to establish their Niche, which is the one thing that makes them unique. Participants were asked about their niche, and he remarked on how several of those niches could be turned into a personal brand. He said that a niche is simply something that brings one joy which others would consider as work. Cooking, karate, dancing and speaking were some of these characteristics.

Mr. Kiruba talked about many of the world's biggest brands, such as TED, which had succeeded in finding a need and filling the need. His workshop was filled with anecdotes, trials, tribulations faced by people and companies, and each story offered a new take on the importance of personal branding. Some of the strategies he offered were to utilize the 'heroic triangle' to stop memorizing stage speeches, to record oneself speaking and to observe, listen and practice. The session ended on an extremely positive and uplifting note, and every participant gave good feedback.

Apart from the session itself, the Alumni Meet was a big part of the event. The Literary Seminary was established 12 years ago, and Alumni from various batches had gathered to interact with their juniors and share their stories and advice. The event had been sponsored in great part by the Alumni themselves. Each Alumnus spoke onstage by introducing themselves and retelling their experiences. It was more than just a meet-up, it was a stage for the Alumni to give their invaluable guidance to the young students. This too was greatly appreciated by the participants, and was a hallmark of the event.

After the session, a short valedictory session was held. Certificates were distributed to the participants by the resource person. Mr. Pintu Mahanta presented a letter of gratitude to Mr. Kiruba Shankar. The juniors of The Literary Seminary presented thank-you letters to their Alumni. The program came to an end with the National Anthem.

Create, Get, Modify, and Save Materials

Import a 3D File from AutoCAD to Assign Materials, Add Backgrounds, and Render 3D Max are CAD programs, short for "Computer-Aided Design". This type of 3D creation tools focus on creating three-dimensional objects based on two-dimensional drawings. Other methods of creating 3D models can be described as more "manual". Polygon modelling involves placing flat "tiles" on a "skeleton", and 3D sculpting essentially means carving an object from a basic shape like a sphere or a cube. These solutions are great for complex tasks, but when you need something relatively simple, like a chair or a table, CAD product design 3D modelling is its perfect tool for the job. 3D Max is specialized product design 3D modelling software used by game makers, product companies and architects alike. Its main purpose is creating full-fledged scenes, high-polygon 3D models, 3D animation, and special effects.

EVENT OUTCOME

- Design animatable characters using the principles of characters design and creativity.
- Create 3D environments, objects and characters within 3DS Max or other appropriate high-end 3D animation software (with most current version available).
- Animate their characters in a way as to produce the convincing illusion of motion in time and space within 3DS Max or other appropriate high-end 3D animation software.
- Create 3D environments, objects and characters within 3DS Max.
- Light and texture.
